

TULSAN BACKED FIRST OIL WELL

Proud of Owning Interest in Hole Drilled almost Century Ago.

KENTUCKY OIL BOOMS

J. B. Dickenson Says Oil and Moonshine Plentiful in Mountains.

The "original Tulsa booster" is again in evidence, this time as a real oil producer, and at the head of the National Oil Well Reamer company of Kansas City, who leases a new patented reaming device to the leading oil producers in the mid-continent field, also in eastern fields.

J. B. Dickenson, known to practically everybody in Tulsa of former days, says he is proud of the distinction of owning an interest in the first oil well drilled in the United States. This well is located four miles from the county seat of Cumberland county, Ky., and was drilled in 1829. It is 125 feet deep. On the same lease Mr. Dickenson and associates own another well, drilled in 1863 by the American Oil company, which flowed over 50,000 barrels, and is still making some oil of 54 gravity.

"Yes, Kentucky is pretty dry these days, but high grade oil and 'moonshine' is becoming plentiful in the Cumberland mountains. We ship oil in barges down the Cumberland river, but a pipe line is being surveyed and a refinery is soon to be built at Turkeville, the county seat. I expect Turkeville to be a second Tulsa when transportation is provided," said Mr. Dickenson.

"If anybody doubts my claim, I respectfully refer them to the 19th United States census report, page 125 for proof of the early development of oil in what was then Tennessee, but in now Cumberland county, Ky. The first well was drilled for salt water, but instead, oil flowed and ran down a small stream for many years. At that time crude oil was not regarded worth anything; salt water and pine torches were used, and of course the automobile was never dreamed of.

"Turkeville is about 60 miles east of Bowling Green, the nearest railroad being 40 miles distant. In spite of the fact that no railroads are built into the mountain regions, scores of oil rigs are being shipped into that district and the Kentucky pioneers—and 'brewers of the famous dew' are doing a thriving business. I predict that ere long that district will become famous for nice wells and big profits in the oil game. I like the oil but 'dew' that don't interest me since it has been outlawed."

CHURCH PLANS NEW MANSE

Presbyterians Will Convert Former Community House Into Home.

Making of a six-room manse from the former community house of the Second Presbyterian church is now in progress. The community house is located at 1114 East Barton and its remodeling will cost about $2,000. The manse will be occupied by Rev. W. H. Murphy, Jr., pastor, and Mrs. Murphy. The new community house, recently completed, was erected at an expenditure of about $4,300. Special mid-summer services began last Sunday at the Second Presbyterian church will continue during August and part of September.

Sidewalks for Pawhuska. PAWHUSKA, Aug. 12.—J. M. Buckley, street commissioner, is expecting soon to order the construction of sidewalks to the amount of 10 miles. It is intended to connect the new school building, the new city park, and various residence sections and new additions.

FIND ROBBER DEN IN CITY

Miscellaneous Articles Uncovered by Police in Daylight Raid.

In a raid on the Sunnyside Cafe, on North Greenwood yesterday afternoon, police officers captured more than $250 worth of supposedly stolen articles. The negro proprietor of the place excepted while the raid was in progress. Officers declared that he was one of the biggest "fences" for stolen articles in this section of the country.

Five boxes of cigars, valued at $35, and about $75 worth of cigarettes were found in one of two large wardrobe trunks in a back room. A complete set of extra fine silver ware, was also found stored away. A gentlemen's toilet set with a leather case, valued at about $25 and 25 pounds of high grade bacon were uncovered. A large roll of insulated electric wire was found in one corner.

The officers declared that the cafe was only a blind for a hangout of break thieves and dope heads. The recovered articles were scattered and hidden all over the place and the police believe that the negro has other storage and hiding places.

"A WOMAN'S BUSINESS"

Adapted From the Popular Novel
"NOTHING A YEAR"
By CHARLES BELMONT DAVIS

She was a girl of love. She bargained skillfully and carefully. She married all a woman holds sacred for the future and a life of ease. BUT—Did it bring her happiness? NO! OR WHY? WHICH KIND? This girl who played the secret to gain for herself and her husband the good things of life, was losing her battle with destiny and experienced the trials of a temptress. She thought she knew a woman's business, but did she?

What is "A Woman's Business?"

Is it "A Woman's Business" to be successful at night, when into his pockets she senses left and right?

Is it "A Woman's Business" to marry for wealth or for love and happiness?

Is it "A Woman's Business" to be a mistress of the United States?

Is it "A Woman's Business" to be a business woman, the stage or politics?

Some women take up the wrong business—they become home breakers instead of home makers.

Are you a home maker or a home breaker?

Is it "A Woman's Business" to make it hard for her husband?

Does your husband give you a home?

What do you give him?

Are you making your husband or are you breaking him?

The way to a man's heart is through his stomach and it is "A Woman's Business" to learn how to cook.

Is it "A Woman's Business" to love her husband and not her neighbor?

It takes a woman to mind "A Woman's Business."
